

Down By The Station Classic With Holes: A Timeless Masterpiece

A History of the Down by the Station Classic With Holes

The Down by the Station Classic With Holes was first created in the early 1970s by the British clothing company, Down by the Station. The company was known for its unique and innovative designs, and the Classic With Holes quickly became one of their most popular pieces. The shirt was originally made from a lightweight cotton fabric, and featured a series of perfectly spaced holes running down the front and back. The holes were designed to allow air to circulate, making the shirt ideal for warm weather.
