

The Enchanting Allure of Paper Money from the Kingdom of Hannover: A Historical Exploration

Birth of a Kingdom, Birth of a Currency

The Kingdom of Hannover emerged as a sovereign state in 1814, following the Napoleonic Wars. With its newfound independence came the need for a distinct monetary system, one that would reflect the kingdom's growing economic stature. Thus, the Hannoverian State Bank (Hannoversche Landesbank) was established in 1824, tasked with issuing banknotes for the kingdom.
